U of L Open Access Policy

Policy

A key purpose of the University is to promote the creation and transmission of knowledge, with proper consideration given to robust public access to that knowledge and to the need for an educated citizenry. In support of that end, University of Lethbridge faculty, graduate students, and post-doctoral fellows (collectively, “University authors”) are committed to sharing the products of our research and scholarship as widely as possible. To do so, we agree to archive and disseminate scholarly articles we author by depositing these with the University.

We commit to deposit all scholarly articles authored or co-authored while we are authors at the University of Lethbridge, although this policy does not cover any articles published before the adoption of this policy, any articles for which the author entered into an incompatible licensing or assignment agreement before the adoption of this policy, and any articles published after we leave the University.

To facilitate the archiving of our work, we grant the University of Lethbridge the non-exclusive, irrevocable permission to archive, preserve, reproduce and openly disseminate, in any medium, all scholarly articles authored by us, provided that the articles are properly attributed to the authors, and that it is done for non-commercial purposes. We grant this permission on the understanding that University authors will not be charged any user or service fees for activities required to comply with this policy.

We agree to freely provide the University of Lethbridge Library with an electronic copy of the finalized text of each article no later than the date of its publication. The Library will make the article available to the public, taking into consideration requirements for access delay. The application of this policy to any particular article will be waived automatically upon request by a University author.

The Provost, in consultation with the University Librarian, will be responsible for this policy, including providing requested waivers, resolving disputes concerning its interpretation and application, and recommending changes to General Faculties Council periodically. This policy is to be read and interpreted in a manner consistent with University policies related to academic freedom and intellectual property.

The policy will be reviewed after three years and a report presented to General Faculties Council.

1 The granted permission is “irrevocable” only to ensure permanent public access remains in place for the scholarly articles.
2 The granted permission includes the ability to archive and openly disseminate articles “in any medium” only to ensure the content of the University’s research repository can be migrated to other archiving and dissemination media and platforms as the need arises.
